Before the meeting (2 minutes)

1. Create the room. Choose Two Truths & a Lie at meeting-games.com and create a room.

3. Share your screen. Share the host view so everyone sees the same three statements.

Run of show

When	You do	What to say / do
0:00	Welcome	“Three statements, one of them is false. Pick the lie.”
Each round (~45 s)	Read, pause, reveal	Read all three statements. Give a few seconds of silence so people can second-guess themselves, then reveal. Ask who was most sure before the reveal.
After a close call	Celebrate	Point out rounds where the room split evenly. Those are the best moments.
After the last round	Finish Game	Thank everyone and read out the scoreboard.

Facilitation tips

- This mode uses prepared statements. For the classic personal version (everyone writes about themselves), run it on the call and use the guide on meeting-games.com.
- Five rounds is a short session; eight to ten is a full social.
- Keep rounds snappy. The fun is in the reveal, not the explanation.
- Want no right answers? Switch to Would You Rather.
